Course Description

“Art is art-as-art and everything else is everything else” Ad Reinhardt

Contemporary art is defined as the art movements that emerged in the post-WWII era, c. post-1945. From expressionism to performance art, installations and video art, to NFTs; from the Venice Biennale of 1895 to a plethora of offshoots around the globe in the 2020s; from the legitimation of street art as a gallery-worthy form of art to popup and guerilla shows; from national collections to art fairs and an omnipotent market for contemporary art around the globe.

At first, contemporary art in Greece was foremost produced by Greek ex-pats who came into contact with the international avant-garde of their time, especially in France, Italy and the USA. The picture changed radically in the 1980s, when the domestic contemporary art production caught up, an audience was established and galleries started emerging, which culminated institutionally in the 1990s with the establishment of the Syndemos Aithouson—an art gallery association and the subsequent launch of the first commercial art fair in Greece, ART ATHINA, still hosted to this day by the same initiative. While focus is specifically on Greece, contemporary art and its material manifestations did not emerge or develop in Greece; thus, parallel to the Greek stage, we will study global or regional (i.e. France; USA) developments, depending on the era, and form thus a solid idea about the overall history of contemporary art.

Students acquire a first-hand knowledge of the contemporary art scene in Greece, in a course combining class lectures that explore the history and theory of contemporary art, with scheduled site visits of a diverse nature. The latter range from the iconic EMST (National Museum of Contemporary Art) and the National Gallery, to Foundations, such as the Takis Foundation, DESTE and NEON, and Onassis Foundations, private commercial galleries, including but not limited to legends, such as Citronne and The Breeder, temporary exhibitions, in expected, but also in surprising unconventional venues; field walks to discuss the public presence of contemporary art (mostly sculpture) in Athens, including a unique example of landscape sculpture of the grand scale and street art; and contemporary art archives. In addition, visits to artists' studios and the art 'laboratory' that is the Athens School of Fine Arts (the annual graduates show) facilitate an interaction with the producers of contemporary art today, and help the students familiarize themselves with the artistic process, contextualizing the artistic production spatially and culturally. Last but not least, the work of the professor as an independent contemporary art curator is discussed critically and students have the opportunity to watch a show coming to life, depending on the professor's curating commitments each semester.

In lieu of a conclusion, contemporary art is in a state of flow: this is its basic tenet and the key to understanding and interpreting its many faces. The emerging Greek artists of today will be the established stars in the histories of contemporary art of tomorrow and names of significant market value today will be forgotten by the history of the longue durée.

Course Approach

To investigate the issues outlined above, we will read; analyze and interpret texts, evidence, and experience; work and think with others; visit art venues and museums; and write as follows:

Reading and viewing: We will read a wide variety of texts, from contemporary theory pieces to catalogs of specific exhibitions of contemporary art and interviews of contemporary artists. In addition, we will view documentaries and related archive videos.

Analyzing and interpreting: We will critically analyze and interpret our first-hand experience from scheduled class visits to museums and venues, as described above, where we will study contemporary art in a visual, typological and contextual manner, with emphasis on the multisensory. Our tools will be field notes, student presentations and discussion on site followed by discussion in class and independent student work (individually and in groups) in the form of assignments.

Working and thinking with others: Art is a collective endeavor, so is education. Building the culture of the class so that genuine inquiry is possible will take all of our efforts. Because we rely on everyone's contribution, the course will follow the pedagogy of a seminar, focused on motivation for participation in an atmosphere where all (informed) opinions are encouraged. Writing: This course involves a significant amount of writing of different kinds. You will take short field notes during museum visits and field walks, as mentioned above; you will write brief reports on selected weekly readings to present to class as assigned. You will draft short presentations of chosen artworks in museum and venue visits. You will take scheduled written midterm and final exams. Finally, you will compose a term project to be submitted both as oral presentation and in written form (at least in part, see separate file on Moodle re. term project instructions). Also, please consult essay and reading rubrics for more detailed instructions.

Presentations: During the semester, you will present artworks of your choice (in consultation with the professor), in our museum/ site visits. Utilizing the theoretical and methodological tools you will have acquired in class, you will present and critically analyze the works in context in a concise (5') and comprehensive manner (see oral presentation rubric for more detailed instructions).

Learning Objectives

The course is designed ideally for students of art history, fine arts, architecture, anthropology, curatorial studies, but also classical studies, classics and archaeology, heritage studies, economics, law, environmental studies, as well as any discipline with interest in the arts and art institutions. By the end of the course, students should be able to:

- 1) distinguish between styles, works, periods, geographies and artists of the contemporary art scene in Greece and internationally;
- 2) critically inquire about the aims of contemporary artists working in different periods and localities, inferred both through the formal aspects of the studied artworks, and the reception of these works by the public;
- 3) combine a visual analysis of contemporary art with the available (on occasion conflicting or incomplete) archive evidence and place artworks in their historical and cultural circumstances;
- 4) describe a work of art with the terms and methods of art history;
- 5) appreciate the aesthetic aspect of contemporary art, while acknowledging their political, sometimes overt, other times subtler, content;
- 7) recognize echoes and interpretations of ancient Greek art in contemporary Greek art (from public sculpture to street art);
- 8) position themselves on the debate about art and society in the world of today.

Course Requirements

- In-class midterm and final exams
- Three oral presentations of art (two museum/ gallery/ art venue presentations and one presentation of Athens public sculpture or street art)
- Participation with active contribution to each lecture's topic. This involves critically processing assigned readings and presenting/commenting on their content during class
- An average of 50 pages of reading per week

- At least 10-15 pages of research work. If spacing is 1,5 and font size 12 Times New Roman, 4,000 words are 12,5 pages. This comprises notes for museum/ public art presentations, field notes, reading notes, class notes and the term project
- Group term project presented toward the end of the semester (for dates see below class schedule)

Assignments: To receive credit for an assignment, you must turn it in (submit via email) BEFORE the beginning of class on the due date, unless otherwise noted. No late assignments will be accepted.

Exams:

- Midterm
- Final

Each exam comprises image identifications, descriptions and comparisons; short identification of terms, artists' names, art movements, and concepts; critical response essay-type questions and commenting on quotes from texts studied for and discussed in class; and a short answers section, such as "fill in the blanks", "true/ false", multiple choice. There will be choice for every part of each exam. We will discuss the format further before the exams, in the respective review sessions.

Class Field Work and CYA Field Study

The course is taught in museums and art venues to a considerable extent. Contemporary art is integrated in the everyday life of Athens and its inhabitants and can and should mostly be experienced where it is to be found. Classroom sessions are utilized for providing a theoretical and art historical context to the art studied in the field.

CYA Field Study

As part of your CYA mandatory trips, you will encounter contemporary art in various locations and guises, from National Museums (MOMUS) in Thessaloniki (N Greece trip), to private venues, such as Fougaro at Nafplion (Peloponnese trip), and temporary pop-up shows in various cities and towns of Greece, sometimes even in the archaeological sites and museums you will visit. Keep your eyes open and your senses involved and pursue these opportunities for experiencing more contemporary art than the amount we study in class.

Evaluation and Grading

Your grade for this course will be based on the following distribution:

Percentages (and any breakdowns)

Midterm exam: 20%

Final exam: 25%

Term project: 20%

Museum/ gallery/ field walk presentations: 24% (8% each)

Participation and contribution with field notes and critical discussion of readings: 11%

Evaluation Criteria - Course Assignments

Assignment 1: term project, 20%

- Criterion 1: originality and creativity (of idea and format)
- Criterion 2: coherence
- Criterion 3: relevance with the course matter

Assignment 2: three oral presentations (24% total, 3X8%)

- Criterion 1: coherence and flow
- Criterion 2: thorough research and critical stance
- Criterion 3: timed presentation

For more detailed information about the kind of work to which each grade corresponds (for this particular course), please consult the course rubrics, available on Moodle.

CYA Regulations and Accommodations

Attendance Policy

CYA regards attendance in class and on-site (in Athens or during field study trips) as essential. Absences are recorded and have consequences (= directly affect your participation grade component). Illness or other such compelling reasons which result in absences should be reported immediately to the Student Affairs Office.

Academic Accommodations

If you are a registered (with your home institution) student with a disability and you are entitled to learning accommodation, please inform the Office of Academic Affairs and make sure that your school forwards the necessary documentation.

Policy on Original Work

Unless otherwise specified, all submitted work must be your own original work. Any ideas taken from the work of others must be clearly identified as quotations, paraphrases, summaries, figures etc., and accurate internal citations and/or captions (for visuals) as well as an accompanying bibliography must be provided (Check the Student Handbook).

Use of Laptops

In-class or onsite use of laptops and other devices is permitted if this facilitates course-related activities such as note-taking, looking up references, etc. Laptop or other device privileges will be suspended if devices are not used for class-related work.

NOTE: one side of the classroom can be designated as a laptop-free zone, if students so wish. Please sit accordingly in this case.

Class Schedule

Class Day	Day/Date/Place (if applicable)	Topic / Readings / Assignments Due
1	Mon 29 Jan	Introduction: course specifics, course process and requirements. Short library tour. Description We begin the course by introducing ourselves and our intentions. We proceed with a thorough examination of the syllabus, analyzing the structure, aims, requirements and components of the course. We explore the rubrics and explain any necessary points. We look at the course bibliography and explain the assigned readings process. We visit the library to familiarize ourselves with the range of contemporary art-related books of the collection and locate the Professor's reserve shelf with the reading material for the course. Recommended reading HD, Marcel Duchamp
2	Wed 31 Jan	History of contemporary art: multivocality and conflict Description A theoretical introduction to contemporary art and its origins. When does contemporary art start? It is conventionally defined as art post-1945, but opinions differ. Does it really start in the 1960s, when most peculiar to contemporary art genres become established? Or does it start post-1989, when the understanding of the world as it is shaped today gains ground in the notorious 1990s? How do we study contemporary art? Is there a point in creating a history of a process that is very much still in the making? What is the relationship between history, theory and critique of contemporary art? A few seminal theoreticians will be mentioned and their work approached critically. Required readings Fineberg 2022, Introduction HD, Introduction Stallabrass 2006, Ch. 1 Required viewings https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Q5Ett_UsxZo Griselda Pollock and Angela Dimitrakaki on feminism and art theory https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=pxaSilla1uE Umberto Eco on art Recommended readings Benjamin 1969 Sturken Cartwright Ch. 2, 3, 8
3	Fri 2 Feb	A (MOSTLY) LINEAR UNDERSTANDING OF THE HISTORY OF CONTEMPORARY ART NOTE: for the next few meetings we will follow a conventional narrative for the development of contemporary art, from the end of WWII-future directions. The pioneers: world contemporary art after the WWII, 1950s-1960s Description Abstract expressionism, first used in 1919 to describe the work of Vassily Kandinsky, is the defining moment in the emergence of contemporary art in the USA in 1945. We follow this trajectory, referring to artists and works that marked the shift from modern to contemporary art. We examine, among others, the New York School of the 1950s and 1960s; French art informel (or art autre), the European response to a rapidly changing world and the trauma of WWII. Required readings Fineberg 2022, Ch. 2: 21-29; Ch. 3: 49-56; Ch. 4: 89-98; Ch. 5 Smith 2010

The glorious 1960s: contemporary art comes of age
The diaspora: the first generation of Greek contemporary artists, 1960s-1970s

Description

Greece, much like most of Europe, emerged from the war devastated. Even more so, because the end of WWII marked the beginning of a devastating Civil War for the Greeks that depleted resources, human lives and a sense of belonging together. The first contemporary Greek artists found their identity and artistic idiom abroad, influenced by international currents, while also processing the national trauma. Later on, the military junta that governed Greece between 1967-1974 pushed more artists to self-exile.

The work of Vlassis Kaniaris, Takis, Stephen Antonakos and Chryssa, Lydia Dambassina, Yannis Kounellis will be discussed, among others.

The 1980s: graffiti; the first exhibition of Greek contemporary artists; Greek artists in Greece
Alexandros Iolas and contemporary art as (prestigious) commodity

Description

We examine the emergence of contemporary graffiti from its ancient origins and its illegal presence on trains and walls to the rise of a (post-mortem) superstar, Jean Michel Basquiat; Jenny Holzer, Cindy Sherman; Jeff Koons: art and consumerism. Meanwhile, in Greece, larger-than-life collector and gallery owner, Alexandros Iolas, introduces contemporary art to the (affluent) Greek masses.

Artists examined: Rena Papaspyrou, Niki Kanagini, Nella Golanda, Lisa Sotilis

Description

The 1990s, an era of prosperity, witnessing, among others, the winning bid of Greece for the Olympic Games of 2004, and the paving of the road for the adoption of the Euro coin, was a time for growth for contemporary art institutions in Greece and a time when high and low culture merged for the first time in a zero-guilt context. EMST visit

Description

The vision of a woman who was replaced when her vision finally became a reality; a project that was in the making for far too long; a museum that was homeless for 20 years, albeit very much alive and active; a listed building that celebrates Greek modernism at its best; a museum that opened in the heart of the pandemic and managed to win our hearts. A tour of the rotating permanent collection of the NMCA of Greece and a discussion of latest developments (new Director's plan, Dimitris Daskalopoulos collection donation). For late 2023/ early 2024, focus is on women as well as the incorporation of pieces from the DD collection to the museum displays.

National Gallery contemporary art collection visit

Description

A legendary institution that exhibits art from the 16th to the 21st c. A de profundis revamping that added a new wing and lot of controversy in 2021. Three floors of world-class art. We focus on the top floor where a small but mighty collection of contemporary art is exhibited, complemented by the sculptures in the garden. Comparing EMST and NG contemporary art display practices, we discuss how museums present their (contemporary) art to the public. ASTYGRAFIA temporary exhibition at the basement level offers a crash course on Greek artistic production of the second half of the 20th and 21st c.

Description

A very special category of contemporary art, which emerged from the modernist 'happenings' and body art, it is the most ephemeral, and, according to some, most powerful category of contemporary art. While examining its world history, we will again study the status of performance art in the Greek scene.

Reading assignments

Assigned readings are to be discussed at the beginning each class meeting. You should come to class each day with some question in mind based upon the readings or previous lectures. In addition to the required reading for each session, there are a number of recommended readings for further reading. These are not required: they are intended to complement each lecture if you are interested in pursuing the subject further. Since it would be impossible, and in many cases needlessly repetitive to try to read them all, I suggest that you read more broadly in the areas of special interest to you.

Recommended Books:

I have placed several books relevant to this course which you may want to consult on my reserve shelf. If you need to consult a book not on the reserve shelf and/ or moodle, please let me (or Georgia) know.
